GENERAL SCHOFFIELD.
When Gen. Schoffeld was appointed to the communal of the first military district, including Virginia, it was apprehended that he might not cuter with the same zeal as some of the other commanders into the reconstruction law. He was thought to be conservative in his sentiments, and, tendencies. He has, however, performed the duties of his command in a manner eminently satisfactory to the loyal portion of the people. The affairs of his district have been managed with fidelity and skill. Quiet has been restored and the rights of the freed men have been secured to a greater degree and with fewer serious agitations than have characterized some of the other districts.

Now that the registration has been completed nader his jurisdiction in compliance with the law of Congress, he has proceeded to fix the day for an election of delegates to a convention for forming a State Constitution. In this he takes the lead of all other district commercions. It is done, too, in opposition to the recommendation of the President to postpone the election to a late day and to hold it on the same day in all th

Gen. Scholield probably foresees danger in such postponement, from the recent movements of the President looking toward a reopening of the registry lists and the admission of rebels pardoned by the late amnesty but disqualified for voting under the law. In taking this step, over which the President has no control, the General asserts both life independence of unauthorized interfarence and his determination to do what he was appointed for; and he sets an example before the commanders of other districts which some of them will he likely to follow. His order on this subject is said to have been suggested by Gen. Great, which may or not be the fact; but, if it was, it shows, if any doubted it before, where Gen. Grant stands in reference to the matter. It is said, also, that the President will probably remove Schofield, which is los only remedy; and this will not prove a remedy unto a be can find some officer to put in his place who will sacrifice his independence to a they-serving policy.

Temperance Convention. The Temperance men of Massachusetts held a large and cathusiastic State. Convention at Worcesler on Tuesday. Eloquent and heavy spearlies were delivered by Gen. the cause and a set of spirited resolutions was a lopted. The advocates of probibition are confident of carrying the Legislature and retaining the present law. The prospect was represented as having never been more favorable for their cause than at present. It is evident that the friends of temperance in that State are wide awake and have no thought of yielding an inch of the ground they have gained. While the opposition comes from the cities, the country tow. are sound to the core and will prevail.

[For the Dally News.] Concluded from yesterday.

"Will the descendants of Roger Williams elt down family and allow their rights to be taken from them, one by one, until they have less freedom than the subjects of the worst despotism in Europe?" Here the claim is asserted, to poison the community without let or bindinuce, and he would have his readers believe that the community was warring upon him, instead of his warring upon them. We will answer this interogatory with an emphatic NO! We have been "fame" quite too long already, and we mean to relieve him of this despotism of paying for a Recuse, and the fear of that awful bond. There is much truth in his assertion that "there is a point, beyond which forbescence ceases to be a virtue, and it appears to me that we have arrived at that point already." This last howl, is a threat against the action of the Police, whose respect for their onths, stands out so striking ly in contrast with that of the Aldermen, showing conclusively that these men would be faithful to their obligations, if they dared. But, does he tell the truth when he says "they (that is the Bound of Aldermen,) did not revoke a man's license, who, the Court said had not violated the law." We enquire what Court? This complaint was never made to any Court, and he knows it. We know what the Alderman said, and we also know that the proof was not only positive, but the fact of safe was not even denied. The endeavor to make your readers believe that a Court had acquitted the defendant and thereby, pulliated if not justified the Aldermen's action, shows very conclusively that the adjective "hypocrite" like a young chicken, has returned home to roost. If the Aldermen are pleased to be again dragged before the public, and an opportunity afforded us to record another questionable not of theirs, they are welcome to it. We refer to their refusal to increase the pay, which the Council voted. If this refusal was a punishment for their fidelity to law, as not a few believe to be the fact, it reflects before. Let us proceed to notice the closing "The infamesis clause in the liquor law, which subjects the dealer to a thousand dollars fine for selling to any female, under any circumstances, shows that the framers of that law class the gentler sex among the most vile and abandoned, and not to be trusted with a glass of cordial even for a dying friend." What a set of foels they were, just as the ladies are about to be enfrauchised, they are driven away to the blad embraces of the liquor trafficers. If we had not above convicted this "fellow," to use his own polite language, of "hypocrisy," here it is no less shown. He knows that this refusal to furnish diquor to women, (and if he had been as honest as he professes to be, he would have acided, manors) was inserted only to protect wives and daughters from being driven from their homes, in all seasons, and in all weathers, to farnish with their own carnings the poison which the drunkard craves - Fer be it from us to defend this law, so diametrically opposed to the letter and spirit of our petitions, but such a perversion of its intention, put forth with such unblushing "impertinence," is not to be folerated. It is the only good point in the law, and, if they had only made it applicable to men as well, it would have been just right. The gentler sex are far the greater sufferers by this traffic, and, when assistence is required by any labor that they can command, it is always at hand. That member of the "gentler sex," Wilson and several other able advocates of who is green enough to be caught with chaff like this, is not to be found. There are, we are sorry to admit, drupken, as well as abandoned women, but these are not the ones appealed to. These do not want "a confiat in a dying hore." They want something stronger, such as are funcished them in spile of the law, at every groggery, and on every day of the week. That awfet cares for it? Who is to enforce its penal- brought to justice. ties, when its provisions are violated? The Aldermen, whose duty it is to withdraw the license will not, and the Treasurer whose duty it is to prosecute done not do it. It never expected it to be any ding but a dead letter, where the liquor interest had the power to defeat it. They know what the and intend yet to have, but they wanted the liquor votes for the April election, and they got them, with no few weak-lines temperance men. If, as they pretend, a majority
